It is the duty of every Republican to be at the polls on Tuesday.

Be at the polls early. That is the time when the Democrats will try to slip in doubtful and illegal votes. Watch them.

Judge J. H. Sypher was taken sick in Cleveland, and was unable to take part in the Republican meeting here last Wednesday evening.

Jamestown, N. Y., was visited by a destructive fire on Saturday night, destroying the principal hotel and many other places of business.

The constitutional amendments were unconstitutional and void in 1868, but in violation of the results of the war in 1880, and Hancock adopts both, and English—the champion usurper of the world—wants a change!

The Ashtabula company of mounted torch bearers—Capt. Mygatt—numbering 30, were out on Wednesday evening, making a fine show. The village was paraded without insult or molestation, and all was peace and good order.

The amount of gold imported this fall, that has passed the assay office, according to the Cincinnati Commercial, is $500,000,000, which, it may be interesting for the Greenbackers to know, has gone into the circulating medium of the country.

DEMOCRATS should be careful about how they feel with Widow Butler. She is as designing and dangerous as she is frail and fascinating. We wouldn't be surprised if she would turn round, one of these days, and bring suit against the Democratic party for seduction. W. Tribune.

A defalcation has been developed in the account of the Sheriff of New Orleans, of $250,000—a loss to the state of $150,000, and to the city of $100,000. The sheriff was a Democrat, the Attorney General, a Democrat, and the city council overwhelmingly Democrat, so that it was a sort of family affair.

We are told by our Southern opponents to remember the principles for which Lee and Stonewall Jackson fought for four years. May we not use the same language a little varied, to the voters of the North? Remember the principles for which Grant and Sherman fought during the rebellion, which saved the nation.

"My father has always been a Democrat, and I have always voted that ticket," said an Ashtabula Democrat last Tuesday, "but I shall not vote for Hancock this fall. My business was never better than it is at the present time, and any change in the tariff laws would seriously affect it. I want no change." This is only one example of the many.

Possibly some Republican voter imagines that just one vote will have no material effect on the result of the election next Tuesday. Should there be any such, we would remind them that should only one Republican in each precinct in the State fail to vote, it will make a difference of one thousand eight hundred and seventy in the result—the number of voting precincts in this State being 1870.

The pastors of the Evangelical churches of the District of Columbia have united in an address to all Christians of all denominations, urging them to pray fervently for an honest election and a fair count in November, and for the success of the candidate whose election will be for the best interests of the Nation, and most conducive to the moral progress of the world.

Solon Chase and seventy-two others bolted and called a convention of anti-fusion Greenbackers. In another hall, where a straight-out Weaver and Chambers electoral ticket was nominated. This action of the true Nationals of Maine is indorsed by all true men everywhere. "No fusion," is the cry all along the line. This announcement is full of hope for Garfield electors.

We had the luxury of listening to a democratic orator last Monday evening. The thing had been announced that Gen. Worthington—a Republican Hancock man—was to entertain the people, but he failed to put in an appearance, and in his place came a gentleman by the name of Hoist, from Cleveland—who seemed to enjoy the faculty of hoisting himself by his own petard, and the audience pretty much frittered away while he was only just worming into life and vitality.

We are indebted to Gen. Garfield for a copy of the bill of Mr. Manning, of Mississippi, for reorganizing the Supreme Court of the U. S. It increases the number of Justices to twenty-one, and provides that twelve Associate Justices, additional to those now constituting that court, be appointed by the President of the U. S., by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The bill shows how two assistant Chief Justices shall be appointed, and for dividing up the eighteen associate Justices, who shall be distributed into three sections for the execution of the three several branches of court business. This bill has been read twice, reported to the judiciary committee and ordered printed. Our object is not to give the bill in its details but to call attention to its evident object. This object is plain enough upon its face. It is, in case of the election of Hancock, to make a clean thing of the government in its Democratic aspects and powers. Every department—the executive, the legislative and the judicial—will be Democratic. There will therefore be nothing in the way of carrying any measure that the Solid South may see fit to introduce. Every war claim now pending before Congress of millions in amount as well as millions more that may be quickened into life, will find their way into the legislative councils of the government for favorable action, and where any question arises over their constitutionality the Democratic feature of the Supreme Court, through its reorganization, will be prepared to pass upon such question of validity and, if pilant and corrupt enough, may bankrupt the treasury by pouring into the lap of the brokers and holders of war claims every dollar which the revenues of the government may supply. This reorganization measure therefore supplies every needed link, in case of the success of the Solid South in electing Hancock, required to the effectual exhaustion and breaking down of the guards and bulwarks of the government. This view of the case cannot be contemplated without well-grounded apprehension, for it is but a well conceived plan to make available and wholesale the capacity that has marked the progress of the Solid South, in its steady concocting of measures for gaining that control of the government by plot which it failed to secure by prowess upon the field. Are there not considerable and prudent men in the Democratic party that can see the effect of these measures upon the welfare of the government and the country? What would be the effect of a Democratic judiciary, secured in their seats by reason of a "solid South," in the matter say of constraining the word "loyal," where Southern claimants for war damages were concerned? Would it not be a different view from that held by Northern judges, who were distinctly on the Northern side? There are over $1,000,000,000 of such claims on the files of Congress, and the question is one of importance. These claims are all presented by Democrats, and by far the larger proportion by ex-confederate Brigadiers. They insult the "intelligence" of the American people with a vengeance.

TRADITIONS AND LONG LINES!
We pledge ourselves anew to the traditions of the Democratic party, as illustrated by the teachings and examples of a long line of Democratic statesmen and patriots. Democratic Platform, 1880.

CONNECTICUT.
LITTLE TOWN ELECTIONS.
New York, October 4.—The news from the town elections in Connecticut to-day causes general jubilation at Republican headquarters. There are 8 counties and 100 towns in the State, and the majority of these have been heard from, showing great gains for the Republicans. They have carried seven towns that last year went Democratic, including the city of Hartford. Last year the Democrats carried a majority of the towns. This year the Republicans have them. The larger towns, Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport, Norwich, Meriden and Norwalk, owing to their large foreign population, usually go Democratic, but to-day the Republicans have carried them. They usually rely on the vote in the agricultural districts to save the State, but the indications of to-day's elections point unmistakably to an increased Republican majority in November. Town elections in a Presidential year, especially when they show such great changes as today's have done, have a most important bearing upon the canvass.
